

Cargill SourcePoint Commodities™

Unlock your access to new markets

Oilseeds are a staple crop in your operation and a key contributor to your bottom line. That's why gaining access to new, stable markets is so important.

With Cargill SourcePoint Commodities, farmers who grow eligible oilseeds in select U.S. locations are poised to benefit from a new and rapidly expanding Canadian market for clean fuel feedstocks that recognizes your responsible production and land stewardship. There is a global movement toward increased use of renewable fuels, and Cargill has invested to help you take advantage of the trend.

The Cargill SourcePoint Commodities program makes it easy to unlock access to this new market with a simple, secure online enrollment process.

Why not be rewarded for what you're already doing?

See if you qualify

Your oilseeds must be grown on land that is not:

Designated a protected area

Home to species at risk

Forested or wooded

Native or biodiverse grassland

A watershed or riparian zone

To take advantage of this brand new market opportunity, reach out to your local Cargill rep or simply login to your CargillAg.com account to take the enrollment tool for a test drive